A SUMMARY OF THE REPORT OF THE CHINA-UNITED STATES

AGRICULTURAL MISSION

In October 1945, the National Government of the Republic of China presented to the Government of the United States of America a proposal for technical collaboration in agriculture and forestry. Following subsequent discussions of that proposal, the two Governments agreed to create a joint China-United States Agricultural Mission to outline a broad and comprehensive program for agricultural development in China and to suggest the type and form of public services necessary for its implementation. It was further agreed that this Mission would give special attention to certain agricultural commodities which for many years had been important items in trade between the two countries.

The Government of the United States of America selected ten men qualified in various phases of agricultural development, and the Government of China named thirteen similar specialists to comprise the Mission. In addition, other specialists, both Chinese and American, assisted the Mission in various capacities. Dr. P. W. Tsou, Senior Advisor to the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry and the Ministry of Food, was Chief of the Chinese Section of the Mission, and Dean Claude Burton Hutchison of the College of Agriculture and Vice-President of the University of California, was Chief of the American Section.

The Mission began its work on June 27, 1946, with a series of conferences in Shanghai and Nanking with officers of the Government, agricultural specialists, educators, business men, bankers, and others well informed on Chinese agriculture, its present day problems, and its relation to the whole economy of the nation.

Eleven weeks were spent in travel to make a first-hand study of agricultural conditions and problems and to reach agreement on various matters which have entered into this report. Studies were made of: (1) agricultural education, research, and extension facilities and procedures; (2) the production, processing, and marketing of agricultural products; and (3) the economic and technical problems associated with rural life and with the use of land and water resources for agricultural production.

In its travels, the Mission divided into six groups on the basis of problems and special commodities to be studied. One group devoted its attention to problems and procedures associated with education,

Señor:

Adjunto a la presente enviamos a usted un resumen de los comentarios que la prensa de los 12 países latinoamericanos que Sir John Boyd Orr, Director General de la Organización de las Naciones Unidas para la Agricultura y la Alimentación visitó recientemente en jira oficial.

Es notable la unidad de criterio con que los gobiernos y pueblos de la América Latina han reaccionado ante los planes de Sir John para darle realización práctica en escala mundial a los objetivos fundamentales de la FAO, los que de acuerdo con el texto de su constitución dicen así:

"Preámbulo

Las Naciones que aceptan esta Constitución, decididas a promover el bienestar común fomentando la acción individual y colectiva de su parte, con el fin de:

elevar los niveles de nutrición y las normas de vida de los pueblos bajo su respectiva jurisdicción, lograr una mayor eficiencia en la producción y distribución de todos los productos alimenticios y agrícolas, mejorar la situación de la población rural

y de este modo contribuir a la expansión de la economía mundial,
